A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

What do Paula Abdul, Michael Bolton, and Patti LaBelle have in common?

Aside from each having sold millions of albums, they all have joined together, along with a long list of some of today's most popular recording artists and teen celebrities, to take part in For Our Children: The Concert, which premieres Tuesday, February 16th, at 6:00 pm on The Disney Channel.

Celine Dion, Bobby McFerrin, Randy Newman, Woody Harrelson, The Party, Salt-N-Pepa, Kris Kross, Ted Danson, Melissa Etheridge, Shanice, Sheila E., and Gerardo will also be singing their own versions of classic children's songs in this two-hour family concert.

In addition to this fabulous line-up of musical talent, Jason Priestley (Beverly Hills 90210), Neil Patrick Harris (Doogie Howser), and Mayim Bialik (Blossom) are among the hosts for the show.

This project is particularly important to us at The Walt Disney Company because all of these performers are participating to raise money for a very worthy cause: fighting pediatric AIDS. The concert will be airing on The Disney Channel as a benefit for the Pediatric AIDS foundation; the Foundation will also receive the profits from the sale of the concert album and the concert video, which are both to be issued by Disney.

Like The American Teacher Awards and Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra, For Our Children: The Concert is another example of Disney's efforts to create entertaining programs to raise awareness about some issues that deserve attention, such as educating our children and ensuring their health through disease prevention.

I hope you'll have the chance to view this very special concert, which will bring joy into your home while giving hope to others.

John F. Cooke and Paula Abdul at The American Teacher Awards. Abdul also appears in For Our Children: The Concert.

101 Dalmatians CREATING AN IMMORTAL DISNEY VILLAIN

"She's one of the few Disney villains that's not involved in magic," says Marc Davis. She is Cruella De Vil, the anorexic-appearing, fast-talking society villain whose greedy desire for a coat made from spotted puppy fur gives 101 Dalmatians its jet-propelled plot. (101 Dalmatians is a world television premiere on The Disney Channel in May.) Marc Davis, one of the famed "nine old men" of Disney animation, was the animating director who created De Vil. (Davis also did all of the animation of Cruella in the film—a departure from normal practice.) "I'm proud of Cruella," Davis says, observing that Cruella "is a woman who doesn't listen to others, who attempts to dominate everyone she meets, and who doesn't know she's evil. She's a society lady—and one rotten, lousy dame." Marc Davis, Cruella De Vil, and 101 Dalmatians are the subjects of a feature story that will appear in our next issue.

A Going Home Special RINGO STARR RETURNS TO HIS ROOTS IN LIVERPOOL

For The Beatles, fame was a ticket to ride away from the poverty of Liverpool. Three decades after the group burst onto the international scene—and forever altered the course of popular music—drummer Ringo Starr returns to his former hometown in Ringo Starr: Going Home, a world premiere on The Disney Channel in April. Ringo is featured in performance with classics from his Beatles and solo careers, plus hits from his recent album. (The songs include "Photograph," "Weight of the World," and "Don't Go Where the Road Don't Go.") But Ringo Starr: Going Home also includes poignant scenes of the drummer as he tours his old neighborhood and his former haunts, accompanied by his son Jason and his stepfather, who raised Ringo. The result is a special that not only rocks with great music but also paints an intimate and surprising portrait of Ringo Starr as man and performer.

Relive the most talked-about home run in baseball history... a Bradford Exchange recommendation

It was the 1932 World Series. A tie ball game. Slugger Babe Ruth at bat with two strikes and the Wrigley Field crowd howling for strike three. Babe defiantly points one finger toward center field. And POW! He crushes the next pitch deep into the center field bleachers.

Now Babe Ruth's legendary "called shot" has been re-created on fine porcelain. And like exceptional collector's plates that command hundreds of dollars on the plate market, "Babe Ruth: The Called Shot" appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes.

Some exceptional plates appreciate in value; some plates go down, and many remain at or near issue price. But the edition of "Babe Ruth: The Called Shot" is strictly limited to a maximum of 150 firing days, and demand is expected to be strong. So if you wish to obtain this plate at the $24.75 issue price, act now. THE WALT DISNEY COMPANY PRESENTS THE 3RD ANNUAL AMERICAN TEACHER AWARDS

Combining the excitement and pageantry of an Academy Awards show with the insight and inspiration of a documentary, The Walt Disney Company Presents The 3rd Annual American Teacher Awards, which was produced in partnership with The Coca-Cola Company and Delta Air Lines, was telecast live December 6. Featuring celebrities Johnny Carson, John Ritter, Dustin Hoffman, Mark Harmon, Melanie Griffith, Don Johnson, Luke Perry, Paul Anka, Paula Abdul, Morgan Freeman, Tony Danza and Jay Leno, the event focused on 36 outstanding educators representing 12 different subject areas.

Johnny Carson, in a rare television appearance since he left The Tonight Show, welcomed the audience by first admonishing them to sit up straight and listen. But Carson was serious as he discussed the value of the program: "In my opinion," he said, "this is the most meaningful and deserving award show on the air today."

In addition to short video profiles of the 36 teacher honorees, program entertainment included performances in dance, drama, and music by student groups taught and led by teacher honorees.

Many of the honored teachers offered moving philosophical messages to the audience. Charles Bird, a swimming coach from Indiana, who won the award for outstanding athletic coach, brought a green feather up to the podium. "Timothy gave Dumbo a feather; with it, he could fly," Bird said. "We give our athletes feathers. Teachers, parents—give your children magic feathers, and stand back and watch them soar."

Robin Kramer, a Mountain View, California, music teacher who won the award for outstanding performing arts teacher, described the value of music education in the lives of children. "Music is a wonderful metaphor for life," she said, "and pretty soon, students realize that the ability to succeed comes from within them."

"The Outstanding Teacher of 1992" was chosen in a secret vote by the 36 teacher honorees, and Rafe Esquith, a fifth and sixth grade teacher at Hobart Elementary School in Los Angeles, was selected.

"I've been given a really great opportunity to let people know there are a lot of great teachers," Esquith said after the event.

Esquith was especially impressed with the quality of the 36 teachers, many of whom are now planning to work together on innovative projects they began to develop during three days of pre-event activities. "All of these teachers have a tremendous passion to educate," said Esquith.

Michael D. Eisner, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of The Walt Disney Company, thanked Delta Air Lines and The Coca-Cola Company for their support of The American Teacher Awards, and summed up the evening this way: "The people we are honoring this evening are exceptional—but not unique. Good teachers are the rule rather than the exception in America."

VALENTINE'S DAY: A BRIEF HISTORY

It seems so natural—springtime is for love. Authorities differ on how the heart-felt holiday got its start. Some say it began with the ancient Roman festival known as Lupercalia. Others trace it to one of two early Christian saints, both named Valentine. Some experts link the holiday to old English beliefs that birds choose their mates on February 14. While the English started celebrating Valentine's Day as early as the 15th century, commercial valentines were first made in the early 1800s; British artist Kate Greenaway became famous for her drawings, featured on these popular cards. Many of the early valentines were blank inside, so that the sender could compose a personal note.

Antique valentines photographed by Chris Mead little exposure to the basics of money and banking.

"We found that as we go out to schools and talk about banks in general, there is amazingly little knowledge about banks—how people save, how loans are obtained, how credit is established—and we realized there needed to be much more education on our part."

First Colonial established a children's savings program in June, offering special incentives to kids who achieve pre-set savings goals. The program is designed to make banks kid-friendly, with tellers and bank officers sitting down with children, explaining the quarterly statements and the concept of interest.

Pawlik advocates giving children a regular, reasonable allowance, offered as compensation for doing basic chores around the house. "If allowance is given in conjunction with education about savings, it proves a very positive experience."

Children should be encouraged to spend part of this allowance, if they wish, but should be taught to save a predetermined amount every week. "The reward of getting compensated for seeing a responsibility through—coupled with a reward of getting a growing savings and interest—offers children great reinforcement."

How much to give children is a tough call. Experts suggest parents arrive at the amount together with their children—and stick to it, so the kids can count on a regular income.

When John F. Kennedy was 12, he wrote his father a note, pleading for a 30 cent raise to his 40 cent allowance—a significant increase. He got it, historians say, because he argued that he needed to buy canteens, a searchlight, and blankets for his scouting activities. Like Kennedy's father, parents should be ready to strike a deal for an increase in allowance as a child's activities increase or require more purchases, experts say. Pawlik says she often sees children lining up on Saturday mornings, with as little as one dollar in hand, anxious to do their banking for the week. Some children, she says, insist on telling the tellers, in detail, exactly how they earned the money they are depositing.

Parents don't need a pre-established program like First Colonial's to get their children interested in saving. "Almost any bank will set up and explain a basic savings account with a child," Pawlik says. "Most bank representatives will also visit schools, sometimes bringing a portable automatic teller machine to demonstrate the new automated processes."

"Many parents don't realize how interesting money can be to children," says Pawlik. "Don't underestimate children and their ability to begin learning about basic savings skills and financial opportunities."

PRESIDENT'S DAY

With the special encores of Presidential Inaugural Celebration for Children on Feb. 2 and Presidential Inaugural Celebration for Youth on Feb. 3, it seems fitting to take a light look at those two great presidents born in the month of February.

SO MUCH FOR LONG SPEECHES
George Washington's second inaugural speech, delivered on March 4, 1793, was the shortest in history—only 133 words. Talking at normal speed, say historians, the speech would have lasted about two minutes. No one would accuse Washington of being long-winded.

LINCOLN LISTENED
Historians credit a little girl from New York—Grace Bedell—with getting Lincoln to grow a beard. In October, 1860, she wrote: "I have got four brothers and part of them will vote for you and if you let your whiskers grow I will try and get the rest of them to vote for you you [sic] would look a great deal better for your face is so thin." Lincoln wrote back "...as to the whiskers...do you not think people would call it a silly piece of affection if I were to begin it now?"

That fall, Lincoln grew a beard.

But kids get headaches, too. Several studies suggest that as many as 20 percent of all children suffer from headaches—and at least four percent are prone to frequent migraines. While a child's discomfort is usually brief and usually not serious, there are occasions when parents should ask a practitioner to evaluate the situation.

According to Sanford Schneider, M.D., professor and chairperson of the Division of Child Neurology at Loma Linda University, in California, children as young as four years old sometimes complain of headaches. Typical symptoms, Schneider says, are irritability, inactivity, or vomiting.

While headaches in children are not uncommon, Schneider says that if a parent sees a persistent headache, certain conditions warrant calling a physician immediately: a headache lasting over a number of days; dilation of a pupil; neck stiffness; persistent nausea and vomiting, or if a child's eyes are turned inward.

One of the most important factors in the evaluation of a child with persistent headaches is the family medical history. Like adults, children can get migraine headaches, especially if others in the family suffer from the problem. A physician, Schneider says, will ask the parents the relation of the headaches to the time of day, to school, to any stressful situations, and to the ingestion of certain foods, such as cheese, nuts, chocolate, fish, iodized salt, and smoked or processed meats. Parents may be asked to keep a headache diary, recording pertinent data and factors associated with the onset of the headaches.

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, other causes of headaches in children include braces, viral illnesses, strep throat, allergies, sinus infections, urinary tract infections, and stress. Acetaminophen or ibuprofen (Tylenol or Advil, for example) are usually effective, Schneider says, in treating the discomfort of a child's headache.

Children whose migraine headaches cause them to be absent from school for as much as once a week are sometimes treated with oral medications such as Inderal and Verapamil, drugs also used to treat high blood pressure and heart problems in adults. Schneider says that about one-third of the children suffering migraine headaches will outgrow them as they mature.

"What's important," Schneider adds, "is that parents listen to a child's complaint of a headache, and make sure the condition doesn't warrant further attention."

COLOR CASTS AND BANDAGES

Getting a bruise, a cut, or a broken arm doesn't have to be an ugly experience anymore. Such accidents have become an opportunity for children to display everything from favorite sports teams to colorful cartoon characters. Johnson & Johnson, for example, now has a line of casting systems that features neon stripes, NFL and baseball team insignia, dinosaurs, teddy bears, bunnies and kitties—and bright neon. According to a company spokesperson, the bright casting gear is widely available and actually motivates kids to treat their casts more carefully.

For bumps and scrapes, some bandages now glow in the dark, and many are available featuring a range of characters and designs. Just giving a kid a choice of designs at scrape time may help dry up tears as your child struggles to decide which bandage to wear.

Now your kids can always walk with a friend.

TAKE A WOK: STIR-FRY FOR THE SMALL FRY

The great thing about stir-fry is that kids get a great deal of satisfaction from helping to make an entire dinner for the family, says Natalie Haughton, author of 365 One-Dish Meals (Harper & Row, 1990, $15.95)

The quickness of the preparation is appealing to kids, who typically have short attention spans in the kitchen. And the versatility of most stir-fry recipes allows for easy substitutions of less-liked vegetables for favorites. "Let children substitute; they will be more inclined to want to make it and eat it," says Haughton.

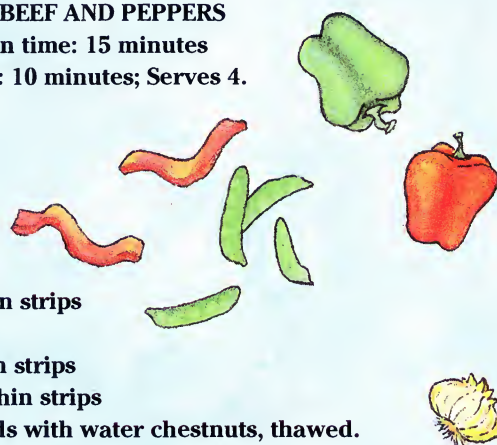

Children need shoulder-to-shoulder supervision when stir-frying and must be directly assisted with both the cutting and the cooking. Stir-frying requires high heat, so potholders and heat-proof wok or skillet handles are a must. Be sure to have everyone wash their hands before cutting up the food, and make sure the cutting board is very clean.

STIR-FRIED BEEF AND PEPPERS

Preparation time: 15 minutes

Cooking Time: 10 minutes; Serves 4.

- 1/3 cup beef broth
- 2 tbsp. reduced-sodium soy sauce
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 1 lb. boneless sirloin steak, cut into thin strips
- 3 tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 medium red bell pepper, cut into thin strips
- 1 medium green bell pepper, cut into thin strips
- 1 6 oz. package frozen Chinese pea pods with water chestnuts, thawed.

1. In a small bowl combine beef broth, soy sauce, cornstarch, garlic, and black pepper. Stir to dissolve cornstarch. Set aside.
2. In a wok or large skillet, heat 1 tbsp. oil. Add half the beef and stir-fry over high heat for 2 to 3 minutes, until beef is browned on outside but remains pink inside. Remove to a plate. Repeat with another tbsp. of oil and the remaining beef; remove to plate with beef.
3. Add remaining 1 tbsp. oil to wok and heat until hot. Add red and green peppers and pea pods and stir-fry until crisp-tender, 3 to 4 minutes.
4. Reduce heat to medium-high. Stir sauce and add to wok. Stir-fry until sauces boils and thickens. Return beef to pan and cook until heated through, about 1 minute.

SWING TIME IN NEW

© Bud Freund/WESTLIGHT

From the opening big band blast of “Sweet Georgia Brown,” this Big Band concert from the Big Apple is a show bursting with the skill and the charm that has made Harry Connick, Jr. an international star at age 25. “I’ve played New York from the barrooms to Broadway,” Connick confides, “and it’s always a thrill, a special feeling.” In the course of Harry Connick, Jr.: The New York Big Band Concert, a world premiere on The Disney Channel, Connick explores the full range of his considerable talents as singer, pianist, conductor—and drummer?

“That wasn’t planned,” Connick admits. “I just started fooling around on the drums and the next thing I knew, my drummer Shannon Powell was over on the bongos playing this Latin beat. There are tons of new moments in this show.”

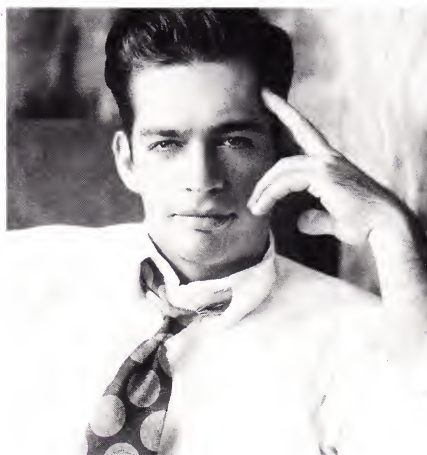

Indeed, this concert filmed at The Paramount has distinctively fresh versions of such Connick originals as “Recipe For Love,” a sweet little toe-tapper. “That’s a good way to describe it,” Connick says. “Out of all my songs ‘Recipe for Love’ is one of the most popular—I never could understand why.”

From there the concert jumps to “The Bare Necessities,” the much loved Oscar-nominated hit from 1967’s The Jungle Book, which Connick recorded for Disney’s Simply Mad About the Mouse compilation, in company with such artists as Billy Joel and Michael Bolton. “It’s a great number, and audiences go nuts, out of their minds. I’m very proud of it because Disney songs are a huge part of our culture. I’ll be singing it when I’m 80 years old.”

Connick first gained international attention with his stylish music for another film, When Harry Met Sally. The Harry in the film was played by Billy Crystal, of course, but “It Had To Be You”

© Palma Kolansky

was pure Connick. Born the same year that The Jungle Book was released, and raised in New Orleans, Harry Connick, Jr. has been performing since he was 6, has been recording since he was 9, and has paid many dues in the nightclubs of Bourbon Street. Drawing from the roots of Dixieland, bebop, jazz and classic crooning, Connick puts it all together with a well-seasoned touch and leading man originality.

“Don’t Get Around Much Anymore” demonstrates Connick’s mastery of standards: the number starts out with Connick solo at the piano, taking his time as he sings the story of a man who is lonely and still in love. Then his big band swings in and takes this classic song from the intimate to the large-screen version. Connick follows with “You Didn’t Know Me When” (co-written with lyricist Ramsey McClean), a song featuring that big jazz feeling and a bold, bouncy beat that evokes the confidence of the late ‘40s and ‘50s.

“It was a good time in American history,” Connick reflects. “A great time in American art and the best time musically.”

Next up is the intriguing tribute to an elusive father figure, “He Is They Are,” followed by the raw stompin’ energy of New Orleans street beat. “With Imagination” is the quintessential Connick high-steppin’ stagger and shake, joined by musicians he modestly calls “some of the greatest heavyweights the music business has to offer.”

A classy showman, Harry Connick covers every square inch of stage in concert. Like a magician, he pops up at stage left on the piano, then reappears at stage right on the drums. But still he shares the spotlight warmly with his band. “Talented dudes,” Connick says of his sidemen. “They give everything.”

Connick slows the pace down a bit for the title tune from his album "We Are In Love" and then swings into the big groove of "It Had To Be You," a show-stopping tune that dates to 1926. "That melody is so perfect," Connick says. "I never thought people would associate me so strongly with this song, but I'll probably be singing it in 2026."

The sometimes humorous "Just Kiss Me" is played at an incredibly fast clip. "A fierce tempo for the rhythm section," Connick admits. "When you can play that fast for that long, it's pretty impressive—and they really wail."

"Just Kiss Me" may be a hard number to follow, but there is a big finish to the show with "All Of Me." And that's exactly what you get—all that Harry Connick, Jr. has to offer in a concert filmed with a special intimacy by Jill Goodacre, his fiancée. "I am as pleased with the way it looks as the way it sounds," says Connick. "No pretense, a happy way to play—it makes people laugh and jazz hasn't done that in many years."

The New York Big Band Concert comes at the culmination of nearly three years of touring worldwide. When asked what's coming up next, the 25-year-old Connick replies, with a warm N'awlins drawl, "I'm just going to sit back and watch The Disney Channel and wait for my show to come on."

For Our Children the concert

Think children's music is for kids? You've never heard the stars on these pages bring their talents to kid's songs. In For Our Children: The Concert, for example, Bobby McFerrin skat sings "We're Off to See the Wizard" and Salt-N-Pepa introduce hip-hop to "This Old Man." (For a complete list of the artists and hosts see page 30.) This family concert was inspired by For Our Children, the gold album from Walt Disney Records that united rock stars with kids' music to benefit the Pediatric AIDS Foundation. And after seeing this show, you'll be happy to know your family can continue to enjoy this music: with the concert premiere on February 16, Walt Disney Records simultaneously releases the soundtrack album of For Our Children: The Concert.

CREATING HOPE FOR CHILDREN WITH AIDS

The Pediatric AIDS Foundation was created in 1989 by three friends: Elizabeth Glaser (at right with Jason Priestley), Susan DeLaurentis, and Susan Zeegen. Elizabeth Glaser, who had been infected with the HIV virus in 1981, from a blood transfusion administered late in her pregnancy, had just lost her daughter Ariel to AIDS. Glaser, DeLaurentis, and Zeegen were determined to create a foundation that confronted the problems unique to children infected with HIV. Today the Pediatric AIDS Foundation remains the only group focused specifically on creating a future that will offer effective therapies and possible cures for children and newborns infected by HIV. In addition to identifying and funding critically needed pediatric AIDS research, the foundation's additional programs include providing help to hospitals around the country which serve children with HIV/AIDS; encouraging students to enter the field of pediatric AIDS through a student intern program; developing a parent education program; and coordinating think tanks to identify a pediatric AIDS research agenda. In 1992, Walt Disney Records joined fund-raising forces with the Pediatric AIDS Foundation with the release of the album For Our Children. All proceeds from the sale of the album (the cover art, pictured below, was a water color painting by Ariel Glaser) were donated to the foundation. The same is true for For Our Children: The Concert.

The Queen of Rock 'N' Roll

Meet one of rock's living legends, a woman who rose from poverty to become a superstar.

TINA TURNER: GOING HOME

A world premiere on Sunday Night Showcase
March 28 at 9:00 p.m. (ET/PT)

To go home with Tina Turner is to go back to her roots and trace her phenomenal rise from impoverished cotton picker to global megastar. Yes, Tina Turner actually picked cotton as a child—and she made the Guinness Book of Records in 1988 when 182,000 fans got together for her Brazilian concert—the largest paying crowd for a solo artist in history. Since 1984, and her “comeback” album Private Dancer, with its smash single “What’s Love Got To Do With It?”, Tina Turner’s worldwide record sales have topped a whopping 25 million.

Tina Turner: Going Home opens with the power and the passion of Tina’s “Nutbush City Limits,” an appropriate autobiographical sketch of her homelife in rural Tennessee, intercut with folks reminiscing. “She was mostly a leader,” remembers Turner’s high school principal. “She was a good student, a basketball player and a cheerleader—she would have played football if it was permitted.”

Songwriter Tony Joe White starts an acoustic version of 1990’s “Steamy Windows” and then we cut to footage of Turner in concert before Tina takes us back to St. Louis in 1956, and her pivotal meeting with the man who would become her husband, Ike Turner. Tina’s career as a singer blossomed in 1960, when one of Ike’s male vocalists failed to make a session, and Tina stepped in at

Times got tough when “six cents in her pocket and a Mobil gas card.”

the last minute to record the lead vocals on the hit “Fool In Love.”

The early period of Tina Turner’s career is a moving docudrama played out in grainy black-and-white TV shows. Of her tempestuous relationship with Ike Turner, Tina recalls that backstage she was “a slave girl—all of that stardom meant nothing.” Musically she began to overshadow Ike in 1967, when Phil Spector produced her hit “River Deep—Mountain High”; “Proud Mary” in 1971 firmly established Turner as a major rock artist.

Times got tough when Tina left Ike in 1976 with “six cents in her pocket and a Mobil gas card.” But admirers like David Bowie remembered her, and this program showcases Bowie in spellbinding harmony, dancing with “such a lady,” as Cher describes Tina. Elton John and Mark Knopfler also tell it like she is before Tina joins Bryan Adams for their hit “It’s Only Love.” And then Tina Turner struts with Mick Jagger in what may be the ultimate rock concert performance—“It’s Only Rock And Roll” from the Live Aid Concert.

If you’ve ever been touched by Tina Turner’s soulful beauty and her fiery performances, you’ll discover new reasons for crowning her the “Queen of Rock and Roll” with the premiere of Tina Turner: Going Home.

HOW TO MAKE A MUSICAL

WHEN IT CAME TIME TO MAKE NEWSIES (A WORLD TELEVISION PREMIERE ON THE DISNEY CHANNEL ON MARCH 28), PRODUCER MICHAEL FINNELL HAD A SLIGHT PROBLEM. "WE WERE REINVENTING THE WHEEL," HE SAYS. "MOVIES LIKE THIS HADN'T BEEN MADE IN YEARS. LUCKILY [DIRECTOR] KENNY [ORTEGA] WAS A STUDENT OF GENE KELLY AND SPENT MANY HOURS WITH GENE LEARNING ABOUT HOW THEY MADE 'SINGIN' IN THE RAIN.'" "MY YEARS OF WORKING WITH GENE KELLY TAUGHT ME A NUMBER OF THINGS," SAYS KENNY ORTEGA. "ONE IMPORTANT ELEMENT IS TO BE PREPARED. ONE NEEDS TO HAVE TIME TO CONCEIVE AND PRACTICE." TO THAT END, ORTEGA BLOCKED OUT TEN WEEKS OF REHEARSAL BEFORE FILMING BEGAN. "THIS WAS AN OPPORTUNITY FOR US TO RESEARCH AND WORKSHOP," ORTEGA EXPLAINS. "IT WASN'T JUST TIME TO LEARN THE DANCING AND SINGING. THE 10 WEEKS WERE SHARED BY EVERY DEPARTMENT: CAMERA, WARDROBE, ART, MUSIC. EVERYONE GOT SOMETHING OUT OF THAT REHEARSAL PERIOD."

At 4½ she's reading 3rd grade books

a child prodigy? not at all! your child, too can be reading one, two or three years beyond present age level...even if a "poor" reader now

Prove it to yourself . . . with this 10 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four-and-a-half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing, by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinates eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on a cassette, sees them in a book and then repeats them. This makes an absorbing game of better reading — with amazing results.

For example: Slow or average readers show sudden—often spectacular—improvement in reading and spelling. Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age level. Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective method.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

I am tremendously pleased. My 5-year old is reading very well and I plan to begin with my 4-year old. I am so glad I invested in this set. Judy I. Gay, Stow, Oh.

Last year I taught grades 1-4. I had a 6-year old boy who came to 1st grade reading 6th-grade words. His father had taught him at home using your set. The father donated the set to our school. I was thrilled because some of the children need a lot of extra help with reading and phonics. Janet Griffin, Triangle School, Apex, N.C.

What a happy Grandma I am! Since I ordered a Phonics set and had it mailed to my granddaughter, Kim, and her 6-year old sister, they are both making A's in school. Mrs. Clarence Sparks, Clearwater, Fl.

Mrs. Nancy Cook, Santa Paula, Ca.

Your company has the best teaching method I have found. Thank you for offering such quality educational materials.

Every picture tells a story.

Some more personal.

The film that's a CAMERA™

There are always those you'd like to see more of. And that's exactly what you get with the Kodak Fun Saver telefoto 35 camera. A built-in telephoto lens takes pictures nearly two-and-one-half times closer than ordinary cameras. Yet it's remarkably easy to use. It comes ready to shoot, preloaded with Kodak film. What better way to get a great picture. And get a little closer.

Get all the fun on film.™

KODAK COMMITMENT: As part of our environmental action program, film processors are encouraged to return the cameras to Kodak for recycling.
